Baldwin CPAs, with five locations in Kentucky, including Louisville, is expanding its presence there by merging in Lindemeyer CPA of nearby Crestwood, Ky., on Oct. 29.

With the acquisition of Lindemeyer, Baldwin CPAs will add 13 new employees to its team, including two partners. The firm will maintain both offices in Louisville and Crestwood.

“Lindemeyer, CPA has taken pride in being a true partner with its clients. We have built a strong reputation by educating our clients and by continuously operating at the highest levels of integrity,” said Lindemeyer managing member Nathan Lindemeyer. “The merger with Baldwin CPAs allows us the ability to expand our service offerings to our clients and offer additional depth of experience and resources.”

Allan Koltin, CEO of Koltin Consulting Group, who advised both firms on the merger says, “Baldwin’s strategy of finding entrepreneurial partners in smaller firms and providing them with a broader platform of resources and talent continues to produce great results. High-performing partners Nathan Lindemeyer and Beth Overbey will thrive with the Baldwin playbook and additional resources. Lindemeyer brings a talented team of associates with them and this should provide growth opportunities for them, as well. With this merger, marking the sixth merger within five years, there is no question that Baldwin is now a major player in Kentucky, and specifically, the greater Louisville area.”

Alan Long, managing member of Baldwin CPAs, says, “We gain two highly accomplished partners and excellent staff. The synergies between the two firms is outstanding as Lindemeyer’s niches dovetail well into that of Baldwin’s. This will expand our footprint in the Louisville market and is a part of Baldwin’s strategic plan.”
